Age-related macular degeneration (ARMD)

is the leading cause of irreversible vision loss in the aging population. Currently, there is no effective treatment for dry ARMD. Previous studies showed that some vitamins and minerals may prevent ARMD mainly via antioxidant effects.

Catarats are the most common cause of reversible vision loss in the aging population. The vision could be effectively restored by cataract surgery. Current literature suggests that some vitamins and antioxidants may prevent the development of age-related cataracts.

Diabetic retinopathy is the leading cause of blindness in the working age group. When occurred, the vision loss from diabetic retinopathy is hard to be restored. A healthy diet including essential vitamins might help prevent diabetes and its microvascular complications such as retinopathy.
